SECTION K1

REVENUE CODING

Basis of Accounting:

An entity's accounting basis determines when transactions and economic events are reflected in its financial records. Measurement focus and basis of accounting for financial statement reporting purposes will be discussed in Section N of the manual. For reporting purposes, governmental funds use the modified accrual basis of accounting and proprietary funds use the accrual basis of reporting.

Modified Accrual Basis:

Revenues are defined as an increase in the governmental unit's current financial resources. Revenues are recognized when they are susceptible to accrual, which means they must be both measurable and available to finance expenditures of the fiscal period. "Available" refers to the collectability of the receivable within the current period or soon enough thereafter to be used to pay for liabilities of the current period. A general criterion for availability is 60 days, although a longer or shorter period may be used, except for property taxes (where the maximum period may not be more than 60 days). The availability period will be disclosed in the notes to the financial statements. Each entity should adopt a revenue accrual policy that implements the susceptibility-to-accrual criterion and applies it consistently. This policy should also be disclosed in the notes to the financial statements. Revenues are measurable when the amount of the revenue is subject to reasonable estimation.

Accrual Basis:

Revenues are recognized when the earning process is complete or virtually complete and an exchange has taken place. Accrual accounting attempts to record the financial effects of transactions and other events and circumstances that have cash consequences in the periods in which those transactions, events, and circumstances occur rather than only in the periods in which cash is received or paid. Accrual accounting is concerned with the process by which cash expended on resources and activities is returned as more (or perhaps less) cash, not just with the beginning and end of the process.

The essential elements of the accrual accounting method include:

The deferred outflows of resources and the subsequent amortization of the deferred costs (prepaid expenses, supplies, etc.),

- 2. The deferred inflows of resources until they are earned (property taxes received in advance).
- 3. The capitalization of certain expenditures and the subsequent depreciation of the capitalized costs (depreciation of cost of machinery), and
- 4. The accrual of revenues that have been earned and expenses that have been incurred.

Recognizing revenue under both methods of accounting normally results in recording certain receivables (assets). These receivables consist of the uncollected but realized portions of the related revenue recognized for the current period.

For revenues or other resources that have not met the availability criterion, the government should report a deferred inflow of resources until they become available. GASB Statement 65 stipulates that the term

"deferred" should now only be used with items reported as a deferred outflow of resources or a deferred inflow of resources. Therefore, entities should refrain from using terminology such as "deferred revenue."

No additions or expansions of any Section K1 codes are allowed.
